

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Composite lumber manufacturing apparatus and methods are disclosed that involve use of an extruder in connection with an extrudate speed detector providing an extruder speed indication that provides extrudate speed information to a servo-controlled cutter to cut the composite lumber as it is extruded without communicating imperfections to portions of still-elastic extrudate.